2018 HIGHLIGHTS

David Schrier, MD, Joins Unity as Medical Director

Unity Hospice welcomed Dr. David Schrier as Medical Director in fall 2018. As Medical Director, Dr. Schrier is responsible for the review and certification of patient referrals to hospice and the oversight of patients’ medical care and treatment plans.

Dr. Schrier has nearly 30 years of combined experience in oncology, hospice and palliative care. He prides himself in developing strong rapport with patients, families and community partners.

“I am honored and humbled to be a part of the Unity family serving patients and families throughout Northeast Wisconsin,” expressed Dr. Schrier.

Unity Exceeds National Benchmark

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services require all hospices to survey family members and ask them to rate the care provided. The survey, called the Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems (CAHPS), covers nearly every element of hospice care.

We are pleased to report family members rated Unity higher than the national benchmark for likelihood to recommend, quality of care and emotional support. Thank you for helping make this possible.

We Honor Veterans

As a proud partner of We Honor Veterans, Unity is committed to ensure the most meaningful and sensitive end-of-life journey. Unity is fully equipped to care for the unique needs of Veterans and their family members - medically, emotionally and spiritually.

Because of the generous gifts made to Unity through the Sgt. David L. Rasmussen Fund, donors make possible:

- Financial assistance – to cover the costs of basic needs
- Unity’s Veteran to Veteran Volunteer Program – Partners specially-trained Veteran volunteers with Unity patients who have served in the military. The camaraderie created between Veterans has proven to be supportive for all involved, bringing great peace and support.
- Patriotic Lap Blankets – Veteran patients receive a handcrafted red, white and blue lap blanket as a token of appreciation for their service. Each is lovingly made by one of 91 different volunteers.
- Grief Counseling – Support for Veteran’s loved ones through one-on-one counseling.

Palliative Journal Club – Leading the Medical Community in Discussion

In partnership with Bellin Health, Unity hosted the second year of the Palliative Journal Club for area physicians, nurse practitioners, and physician assistants. This educational offering is designed to promote high quality, consistent and evidence-based palliative support to patients in Northeast Wisconsin through discussion of peer reviewed journal articles related to palliative care practices and symptom management techniques. The Palliative Journal Club meets five times a year and each attendee earns two continuing medical education credits per event.

Unity Resale Shoppe, LLC Celebrates 1st Anniversary

Unity Resale Shoppe, LLC opened in May, 2017 to provide a meaningful place for the community to donate and purchase quality household items and clothing. Jack and Engrid Meng Residence Refurbishment Completed

Unity is home to the Jack and Engrid Meng Residence, the region’s only inpatient facility where those facing end-of-life receive personalized care 24/7. The Meng Residence has served more than 2,000 patients and families over the past decade and offers specialized care in the comfort and serenity of a homelike environment.

To maintain this level of care, the Meng Residence underwent a refurbishment which was completed in June, 2018. Fully funded by the incredible generosity of Jack and Engrid Meng, the refurbishment included new furnishings, flooring and televisions in each of the 12 rooms and allowed for a renovation of the family rooms and nursing station. The Meng Residence makes a profound difference in the lives of patients and families. We are humbled by those who donate in support of the Meng Residence and grateful for gifts that allow us to serve in the best way possible.

“Helping people go through the most difficult time of their lives in comfortable surroundings, being treated with exceptional care and concern by Unity staff and with their loved ones is very important to us.”
—Jack and Inky Meng

Dedicated Washington Island Hospice Nurse

Unity continues to be the only provider of hospice care on Washington Island. Thanks to a grant made by the Door County Community Foundation and the Kopseker Fund, Unity was able to employ a full-time hospice nurse who lives on the Island. Since this addition, the number of hospice patients who could remain at home on the Island increased from one to eight. These generous gifts have allowed Island residents to receive expert, personalized end-of-life care from one of their own.

Even though living in an out-of-the-way place, patients can die with dignity and comfort in the place they call home.

Thank you for the generous gifts that truly impact lives.

THE STORY OF JACK PARSONS

My name is Jack Parsons. I came to Washington Island in 1967. In 1968, I married my wife, Kristy, a Washington Island native, and retired from the Coast Guard.

A couple of years ago I got really sick and was taken by ambulance to Sturgeon Bay. I got there and they told me they had to transport me down to Bellin Hospital. We were there for seven days when the doctor said I needed hospice. The doctor asked me if I really wanted to go through this again. She said they could keep having me come down to Green Bay every time there was a problem, but told me hospice could take care of me at home.

My wife and I then talked to Unity Hospice. They have been a life saver. We see Unity Nurse Karen at home three times a week. She calls in between. We also have others checking in from Unity...do you need medicine, do you need anything? I’m telling you, I’ve not had this type of service ever...ever. How do you tell people this is pretty good stuff and make them believe you? All you have is my word on it...that’s all I’ve got.

Kristy, Jack’s wife, shared, “At first, Jack didn’t want family to visit because he couldn’t breathe very well and he would get panicky that something was going to happen and they would see that. Now he looks forward to family visiting because he has something for anxiety to keep the panic down. He can talk more now because he has morphine to help him breathe. So now he can enjoy our family visits and his grandchildren. Right now, with Unity Hospice being here, we don’t have rescue squads anymore and he’s comfortable. I sleep, I don’t get panicky and I know what to do and when to do it because Nurse Karen taught me. She’s worked with me and Jack to get the medication to what she calls “the sweet point,” which we’ve done. Relief. Peace.”

“We were totally out of control before. Now we have control over his breathing, his wellness, and a comfortable way of life...it’s good. Before hospice Jack did not have quality of life. He was living poorly...barely living. Now we have a quality of life and there’s peace with that. I know at least now he won’t suffer...because he was suffering before. The life he’s got left is good because of Unity hospice,” said Kristy.

I know I’m not going to get cured, no doubt about it. But I’m at a level now where this is pretty darn good and if today is my last day, I’ve had a good run. I’m very pleased.
Nancy Hanna
A Family’s Perspective

Gary Hanna, Husband
“My wife, Nancy, was a patient of Unity Hospice from November through February. Right after moving here from Michigan, Nancy had scheduled an operation. We thought they were going to find a benign mass, but it was not. A two hour operation became eight. She then had chemo. Her nurse practitioner said the best thing would be to get Nancy onto hospice. She said hospice could react faster and give more personalized attention. We were surprised as we thought of a hospice as a place you go during your last couple of days and that’s it.

Before Christmas, Unity Social Worker Hailie, came and said, “I have something for you. She brought in a big bag and box full of toys for our grandson, Hayden. Just unbelievable; these were all donated. There was a Unity benefactor who wanted to take care of the kids. We were so fortunate. It was tremendous, just tremendous,” Gary said tearfully.

“Hailie also said Unity could provide respite stays so we took advantage of that. In mid-February, Nancy went to Unity’s Jack and Engrid Meng residence for four days. This gave me a break from being her caregiver and I think it gave her a break from me! The people, the services, the speed...everything was great.”

Kelly, Nancy’s daughter
“I definitely had quality time with my mom. It actually turned from a couple of weeks to four months! It was very helpful to have that time and Unity made us a family again.

My fiancé and I were in the midst of planning our wedding. Mom was even able to go with me to get my dress. Because we are older and established, we didn’t need gifts. A lot of our family and friends knew Unity because of mom, so they donated to Unity for our wedding. This meant a lot because we wanted to help another family just like we were helped.

Facebook does fundraisers for nonprofits so for my birthday in June, I asked family and friends to pitch in again. Being able to donate and give back to Unity means so much to me...Because it’s the last place mom was a part of. I feel very honored to help Unity, the organization that helped mom at the end and make her at peace.”
